Destruction of Many German Tanks and Capture Of 1,000 Enemies Reported in Belfort

WEATHER BAD IN ITALY

BULLETINS
With the U. S. First Army in Germany, Nov. 28—(P)—American infantrymen advanced more than a mile today, reaching Inden, only three miles from the Roer river, as the U. S. First Army's offensive slowly drove down upon that important water barrier all along the army's northern wing.

With the British Second Army, Nov. 28—(P)—British troops, consolidating their lines west of the Maas river, cleared out the Grubbenvorst pocket, 3½ miles north of Venlo, today.

U. S. Third Army infantrymen advanced today to the village of Seingbous, 10 miles southwest of the German arsenal city Saarbrücken, and other Allied gains were scored both to the north and south of that central sector.

The French war ministry announced Allied forces had crossed the Rhine three miles north of Strasbourg, according to a French press broadcast recorded by the FCC.

Supreme headquarters said that the Nazi salient south of the Rhine-Ruhr canal in Alsace had been virtually wiped out in fighting which resulted in the destruction of many German tanks and capture of 1,000 men from an enemy force which had attempted to wreck the French supply lines through the Belfort gap.

S. Ninth Army men reached the flooded Roer river, the last natural barrier before the Rhine, and cleared Kirchberg, 23 miles from Cologne, while First Army infantrymen on their right flank closed to within three miles of the stream. The First Army forces advanced a mile and reached the village of Inden in this action.

On the northern end of the front, British troops cleared out the Grubbenvorst pocket, 3½ miles above Venlo, and probed defenses of Blerick, a suburb of Venlo west of the Maas.

Two Nazi supply bases on the western front were the main targets of a night attack by upwards of 1,000 British Lancasters and Halifaxes. Mosquito bombers again raided Berlin.

Bad weather continued on the Italian front. Despite fresh rain, however, Allied forces edged closer to Faenza on the Bologna-Rimini highway 28 miles southeast of Bologna.

Allied headquarters announced that British troops of the Eighth Army had driven most of the Germans from the Lamone river's east bank to the opposite side in the Alberto region five miles northeast of Faenza and that patrols had crossed the stream to the south.

Indian troops attached to the U. S. Fifth Army captured Casale, less than 10 miles south of Faenza.

Blast Wipes Out English Village

Burton-on-Trent, England, Nov. 28—(P)—Unofficial estimates of the dead in the explosion of an underground RAF bomb dump that shattered this midlands district yesterday vary from slightly less than 100 to about 250. The British Press Association said today.

The village vanished as the blast shook the entire countryside like an earthquake, and sent bombs high into the sky. They rained down like a large-scale enemy bombardment.

Scores were trapped in wreckage. Rescuers tunneled through rubble to bring out safely 40 persons buried in a munitions works near the scene.

Carrier Plane Toll In The Manila Area Reaches 151

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 28—(P)—The toll of Japanese ships sunk or damaged this month in relentless American carrier-plane raids on the Manila area stood at 151 today with upward revision of figures on Friday's strike, which bagged 48 ships and 87 airplanes.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz in a communiqué added two ships sunk and 23 damaged to the earlier score.

Lycoming Hunters Use Walkie-Talkie

Williamsport, Nov. 28—(P)—Using a walkie-talkie radio, members of the Texas and Blockhouse Hunting Club from this vicinity, killed a 150-pound bear, their first drive of the first day of bear season.

Clifford Coleman, Williamsport businessman, shot the animal, and W. Herbert Poff, Williamsport merchant, and Harold Moltz, member of the State Game Commission, said the walkie-talkie enabled the 12 members of the drive to keep in touch with each other and to move their lines up systematically.

Canadians Tense Over Conscription

Ottawa, Nov. 28—(P)—The house of commons was called into secret session today in a dominion-splitting conscription issue following a declaration by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King that lack of a "reasonable" unity on the question might lead to anarchy in Canada.

The 69-year-old premier told parliament last night that he would resign if he did not get strong support in a vote of confidence to be taken late in the week. He insisted that this support must include members of his own badly-split Liberal party.

He appealed especially to the wavering French-speaking members from Quebec, who reflect the nationalist province's opposition to conscription for overseas service. He called for an end of racial divergences which have been a bar to complete Canadian unity since the dominion's earliest history.

Even as King spoke, these differences broke into anti-conscription demonstrations as far away as British Columbia on the west coast and as near as Lansdowne Park just a mile and a half from Parliament Hill here in Ottawa.

Today's session, to open at 3 p. m., was asked by the prime minister to hear secret military information bearing on the conscription issue.

Casualties In Great Britain Total 733,030

Washington, Nov. 28—(P)—Five years of war have cost England 733,030 casualties, 136,116 among civilians. One out of every three houses in Britain has been destroyed or damaged.

These figures are among many in a statistical white paper released simultaneously in Washington and London today.

The white paper reported that more than a third of all British men between 14 and 64 are in the armed forces and that nearly half of the country's women between 14 and 59 are in uniform or in industry.

By the end of last year Great Britain lost 11,500,000 gross tons of shipping, two-thirds of the tonnage she had when war broke out in 1939.

Civilian casualties through last September 3 included 57,298 killed. Casualties among the armed forces totaled 563,112 with 176,081 killed. In addition 29,629 merchant seamen have been killed and 4,173 interned.

MONOXIDE VICTIM

Butler, Nov. 27—(P)—Butler County Coroner J. Charles Dangler reported the death yesterday of Pvt. Wilbert Cleo Wood of Sheloceta, from carbon monoxide poisoning. Wood's body was found at Kramer's cabins. The coroner said death was accidental.

Scores were trapped in wreckage. Rescuers tunneled through rubble to bring out safely 40 persons buried in a munitions works near the scene.

In the Friday strikes on the Manila area, Hellcat fighters and aircraft batteries on American surface ships have downed 58 Japanese planes, in addition to 29 destroyed and 32 probably damaged on the ground.

Quick Senate Confirmation Of Stettinius as Successor To Sec. Hull Is Anticipated

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Nov. 28—(P)—Quick senate confirmation was predicted today for the appointment of Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., as secretary of state.

Speed was indicated not only by the general acclaim which greeted President Roosevelt's chosen successor to Cordell Hull, but also by the urgency of pending international problems, headed by the need to complete the Dumbarton Oaks plan for world security.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) summoned the senate foreign relations committee to meet tomorrow and Vice President Wallace said he is confident "the senate will support the president's choice by confirming him unanimously."

At the state department the 44-year-old Stettinius, who has been acting secretary since Hull entered the naval hospital at Bethesda, Md., buckled down to the enormous job confronting him in guiding American foreign policy into new fields of international cooperation. With a Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin meeting indefinitely delayed by the prolonged winter war in Europe, it is likely that the president will turn over to Stettinius the job of completing the Dumbarton Oaks plan either through diplomatic channels or in a conference with the foreign ministers of Britain, Russia and China.

In the main, associates predicted that the secretary-designate would continue the basic policies laid down by his retiring chief. Notable among these is the policy of non-recognition of the militarist regime in Argentina, of which policy Stettinius has been an outspoken advocate.

Mr. Roosevelt sent his nomination to the senate late yesterday, leaving unfilled for the time being the position of under-secretary which Stettinius has filled since September 1943.

Just before the executive office closed, he released the exchange of letters in which Hull's resignation was formalized.

This disclosed that the resignation had been submitted on November 21, a week ago, and it brought out in his own forceful words Hull's bitter regret at having to relinquish the reins of foreign policy before the job of postwar world organization is complete.

Evacuation of all American and British nationals in Kweichow province and unoccupied portions of Hunan was ordered today as two Japanese forces menaced Kweichow, capital of Kweichow.

(A Tokyo broadcast asserted Japanese forces already had stabbed eight miles into Kweichow.) The Chinese high command said one Japanese drive from Luchow had enveloped Hochih in advancing to less than 140 miles southeast of Kweichow while another enemy column was pressing toward the provincial capital from Paoting in Hunan.

Washington, Nov. 28—(P)—Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, soldier-statesman-businessman, gets probably the toughest assignment of an action-packed career as ambassador to China.

Nominated by President Roosevelt to succeed Clarence E. Gauss, Hurley's assignment will be to tie in this nation's Pacific strategy with the crippled Chinese war machine.

Gauss quit shortly after Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell was removed from his China-Burma command at the insistence of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

Now in Chungking, Hurley is working with Donald M. Nelson, former War Production Board chairman, to strengthen China's military and industrial organization.

5,758 ALLIED AND NEUTRAL VESSELS SUNK

Shipping Losses From Beginning of War Through 1943 Aggregate 22,161,000 Gross Tons

CONSTRUCTION RECORD

Washington, Nov. 28—(P)—Shipping losses of the Allies and neutrals from the beginning of the war through 1943 totaled 5,758 vessels aggregating 22,161,000 gross tons.

The British government released today through the Office of War Information a year-by-year breakdown of losses by Britain, the Allies, including the United States, and neutrals, presumably in the service of the United Nations. Simultaneously, the War Shipping Administration announced United States losses totaled 753 vessels aggregating 3,311,000 gross tons.

In the period covered by the announcement, the United States constructed about 30,000,000 deadweight tons of merchant ships, roughly offsetting the losses.

The Maritime Commission in its construction reports used deadweight tons as a measuring stick, while today's report spoke in gross tons. A merchant ship's deadweight tonnage is somewhere in the neighborhood of 30 per cent greater than its gross tonnage.

The report covered losses to enemy action, as well as marine casualties resulting from perils of the sea.

No figures were given on losses for 1944, but the ratio of construction to losses is known to be extremely favorable.

The combined losses of Britain, the Allies and neutrals in 1942 far outstripped United States construction, and may have exceeded all construction available to the Allies since this country had the major role in merchant shipbuilding.

By 1943 the picture was changed entirely. Against losses of 3,646,000 gross tons, this country produced 19,239,626 deadweight tons, or about 13,000,000 gross tons.

This favorable ratio presumably is continuing into 1944.

The United States began losing ships in 1939, the first year of the war in Europe. Between September and December of that year, four American vessels went down.

Retaliation Raid Is Made at Saipan

Saipan, Marianas Islands, Nov. 27—(Delayed)—(P)—In an obvious attempt to retaliate for the first B-29 raid upon Tokyo, Japanese fighter planes twice bombed and strafed the Saipan Superfortress base today at a cost of at least 13 Japanese aircraft.

There was no announcement of American damage.

Brig. Gen. Haywood Hansell, Jr., commander of the 21st Bomber command, said he had no comment because the defense of the island was not his responsibility, but at a press conference before the first Tokyo raid he warned that the Japanese would react instantly and strongly to an attack on their mainland, inevitably inflicting some damage on this base, but at a high cost.

The first attack was by two or three low-flying airplanes which bombed and strafed Saipan shortly after midnight today. The raid lasted only a couple of minutes.

On the eastern sector of the Fifth Army front Indian troops pushing northwest of Modigliana against slight opposition captured Casale, less than 10 miles south of Faenza.

Washington, Nov. 28—(P)—An east-west superhighway running from Newark, N. J., to San Francisco, and another from Canada to Florida crossing New Jersey at New Brunswick were proposed in congress yesterday as part of a $12,000,000 postwar superhighway network.

The network, proposed in a bill introduced by Rep. Snyder (D-Pa.) would consist of three latitudinal cross-country arteries and six running north and south.

Eighteen airports, each four miles square, would be built at intersections.

The measure also contains a clause giving veterans priority on work in connection with the project and second preference to men between the ages of 52 and 64. The clause was not contained in a similar bill proposed by Snyder in May, 1942.

Cashier of Warren National Is Stricken In His Sleep

Death came suddenly during last night to one of Warren's most beloved citizens, Robert W. Mackay.

"Bob" had been in good health and had conducted the Sunday trip of the Allegheny Hiking Club, of which he was the founder. Yesterday afternoon he complained of feeling slightly indisposed and visited a doctor.

He spent a comfortable evening and no immediate anxiety for his health was entertained. However, he could not be aroused this morning and was pronounced dead by a visiting physician.

His wife, Louise Rogers Mackay, has been visiting their only daughter, Joanna, who is taking a nursing course in Rochester, N. Y., and received the news by telephone.

Shock and regret were community-wide as the news spread quickly today. It was universally felt that no single citizen of this entire section of Pennsylvania could have left a greater void by his passing.

Tomorrow's Times-Mirror will contain detailed plans for the funeral and a more extended obituary notice.

Period For Bible Reading Approved

Washington, Nov. 28—(P)—The senate judiciary committee agreed today that it would be a good thing to designate the Thanksgiving-to-Christmas period each year for nationwide reading of the Bible.

"Reading the Bible will x x x bring faith, hope and courage to millions of people now disturbed by doubt, uncertainty and fear," said a designating resolution which the committee approved and sent to the senate floor.

Soldier Vote Gives G. O. P. House Control

Philadelphia, Nov. 27—(P)—Only 28 of Pennsylvania's 67 counties remained to be heard from today as the tabulation of the state's military ballots, begun last Wednesday, entered its sixth day.

Philadelphia county, the state's most populous, was among those for which complete figures were missing. Unofficial totals in the presidential and U. S. senatorial races were released, however. They gave Roosevelt 24,875 GI votes to Dewey's 17,839, raising the president's city-wide majority to 150,647.

Philadelphia's soldier vote for U. S. Senator gave Francis J. Myers (D) 33,090 and James J. Davis (R) 18,989.

The state soldier vote count, as it stood this morning, gave Republicans a constitutional majority of 105 members in the state house of representatives, but election of three servicemen presented a possible complicating factor.

Democrats now hold 91 of the 268 house seats, with a dozen remaining undecided.

In regard to the servicemen elected to the house, Speaker Ira T. Fiss has announced that the attorney general's office has advised him informally that the decision as to whether or not they are to be admitted to membership "is entirely up to the legislature" when it convenes January 2.

The civilian vote assured continued Republican control of the state senate, but two contests—in Cambria and Beaver-Lawrence counties remain to be decided.

REPUBLICAN ELECTED IN 25TH DISTRICT

Beaver Falls, Nov. 27—(P)—Complete returns from 25th congressional district—Beaver, Butler and Lawrence counties—showed today that incumbent Republican Rep. Louis E. Graham won his contest for reelection over Samuel G. Neff of Ellwood City, the Democratic candidate.

The final vote from the three counties, including the civilian and soldier vote, gave: Graham 61,528, Neff 60,478—a majority of 1,050.

No cigarette smoker himself, Ferguson said his interest is "to see if the shortage has been caused by black market, excessive storage or for other reasons."

"People have been led to believe that they can't buy cigarettes because a large percentage of manufacture is going to troops overseas," Ferguson continued. "Then they learn that at many points the soldiers can't get cigarettes or have to pay black market prices."

"There probably are a number of explanations for the shortage, including increased consumption here and abroad."

"But, until we find out what the causes are, it will be difficult to find a remedy."

SLEET STORM HALTS DRIVE ON BUDAPEST

Russians Make No Mention Of Progress But Say Situation In Hungarian Capital Is Tense

50 HAMLETS CAPTURED

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Moscow, Nov. 28—(P)—The heaviest snowfall of the year following a severe sleet storm slowed down action today in the battle for Budapest.

German and Hungarian troops were occupying defense positions along a 26-mile curve from the southern limits of Budapest to the rail junction of Aszod on the northeast, front advisers said.

The Russian command made no mention of progress on that front although reports here said the situation in the Hungarian capital was tense.

The Soviet war bulletin, however, reported capture of 50 additional hamlets in the puppet state of Slovakia. Red army columns in a six-mile penetration of northern Slovakia crossed the 2,700 foot Carpathian mountains along the Polish frontier. Other units in the south advanced to within 11 miles of the big northern Hungarian rail center of Satoraljaujhely.

Thus Col. Gen. Ivan Petrov's Fourth Ukrainian army widened its front to 75 miles from a point west of Duda pass in the north down to the Hungarian frontier, and further imperiled the enemy strongholds of Presov and Kassá (Kosice). Red army units only 25 miles to the east already menace those two points.

(A broadcast Romanian communiqué recorded by the FCC said Romanian troops, renewing their attack northwest of Tokaj, in northeastern Hungary, had captured Bekecs, 12 miles northwest, Southwest of Miskolc and northeast of Budapest tank-supported enemy counterattacks were repulsed by Romanian and Soviet troops, the communiqué added.)

(The Berlin radio said Soviet troops who had crossed to the west bank of the Danube at Batina and Apetin in northern Yugoslavia had forced the Germans back a mile or more. This operation, not yet confirmed by Moscow, was seen by the Germans as an attempt to take Budapest from the rear.)

PUBLIC HEARINGS IN MILK MARKET AREAS

Harrisburg, Nov. 28—(P)—Public hearings will start soon in 13 milk marketing areas in Pennsylvania to air conditions affecting the production, marketing and distribution of milk and milk products.

The Pennsylvania Milk Control Commission said the hearings are being called "to take any action necessary or appropriate to reflect the changing conditions affecting the production, distribution and consumption of milk throughout the state."

Commission members were out of town yesterday when the announcement was made concerning the hearings but an official said requests for changes in territorial limits was the main object of the hearings.

SHARPSBURG PUPILS ARE ON STRIKE AGAIN

Pittsburgh, Nov. 28—(P)—Students of Sharpsburg high school went on strike again today, the second time in two weeks, after basketball coach Albert Ferraro rejected the school board's terms to reinstate him.

The 225 students quit the first time because Ferraro, science teacher, was replaced. They replied by sending the results of a "reinstatement" questionnaire distributed by the board among their parents, who voted 89 to 6 for retention of Ferraro.

The board then offered Ferraro his job back, but on condition he resign from the athletic council.

Ferraro declined, and, apparently, the students did too.

London, Nov. 28—(P)—British heavy bombers flying in forces totalling at least 1,000 dealt sharp blows before dawn today to two German supply bases just behind the western front.

One wing attacked Neuss, a railway center in the northern Rhine valley from which tracks branch to all sectors of the front where the British Second Army and the U. S. Ninth and First Armies now are engaged.

Another battered Friedberg, across the Rhine opposite the U. S. Seventh and French First Army sectors. American heavy bombers attacked German rail movements at Offenbourg north of Friedberg yesterday.

British Mosquitos made another night attack on Berlin.

American fighter pilots shot down 98 German planes yesterday. Thirteen American fighters and one bomber were missing from yesterday's operations.

New York, Nov. 28—(P)—Ford Frick, president of the National Baseball League, said today that the major league clubs had voted to hold their annual meeting in New York, instead of Chicago, on Dec. 11 and 12 with a combined meeting slated for Dec. 13. The meeting originally was scheduled for New York but was transferred to Chicago last month as a courtesy to the late Commissioner K. M. Landis, then in a hospital. Landis died Saturday and the moguls voted to return to their original convention site.

JESSIE CLARK JOHNSON

(Special to Times-Mirror)
The death of Mrs. Jessie Clark Johnson, 84, widow of W. Russell Johnson, occurred Monday morning at 1:45 o'clock at her family residence, 132 West Main street, Falconer. She had been ill for many months.

Mrs. Johnson was the mother of Ray Clark Johnson, of Falconer, and a sister of Mrs. Carl Campbell, of Tulsa, Okla., with three grandsons, Corp. Ralph Hooker Johnson, home on furlough from the Army Chaplain's Corps at the Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland; Corp. Richard Clark Johnson, of Camp Sikotie Valley, Glenview, Ill., and First Lieut. Harold Austin Johnson, U. S. Air Force pilot reported missing over Kiel, Germany, on June 13, 1943. There are also two great-grandchildren, Roger Clark and Cheryl Kathleen Johnson, of Waterville, Me.

Mrs. Johnson was the eldest daughter in the family of the late James and Mary Stevens Clark, of Warren, Pa., where she was born September 7, 1860. Her marriage took place September 30, 1880. Mr. Johnson's death occurred in Falconer on July 13, 1938. They made their home for many years at Russell, Pa., before coming to Falconer 50 years ago.

"MERRY WIDOW" COMING TO JAMESTOWN SOON

As fresh and melodious as earlier generations enjoyed it, "The Merry Widow" Franz Lehár's greatest gem of music, love and laughter will be presented at Shea's Theatre, Jamestown, for one performance Tuesday night, Dec. 5. The hitting tunes of this exquisite Viennese masterpiece have been untouched but the book and lyrics have been modernized by Rowland Leigh and Randolph Carter, and in doing so they have made wide use of its singing and dancing possibilities without losing any of its delightful charm.

Since its first presentation in Vienna in 1905, "The Merry Widow" has lived in the affections of music lovers throughout the world and its hit tunes, "The Merry Widow Waltz" and "Villia" are rated in music publishing circles as the biggest seller of all times.

Paris of the gay nineties supplies the locale for "The Merry Widow" and its story deals with the gay doings of Prince Danilo, who has been sent by his debt-ridden country to make love to and marry a very wealthy widow. When it develops that she is beautiful and charming as well as wealthy he is the most surprised as well as the happiest man in the French capital.

Monica Moore, the beautiful Australian inging star, is a happy selection to sing the title role. Among the other artists appearing in the large excellent cast are, Malcolm Lee Beggs, Frank Melton, Ken Kelly, Nina Olivette, Karen Lord and Helene Maye. The production also features the famous "Corps de Ballet" of the Boston Opera Company.

Magnesium is so weak in its pure state that a small boy could bend a half-inch bar, yet it is so tough as an alloy that it will stand the shock of landing a 30-ton warplane.

Superintendent For Warren General Will Arrive Soon

The Warren General Hospital board of directors makes public today the news that Mrs. Hazel Morton Smith, R. N., who has resigned her position as superintendent of Skiff Memorial Hospital in Newton, Iowa, to become superintendent of the local institution, will arrive about December 7 or 8 to assume her new duties.

Mrs. Smith is a native of Mercer county, her family residing in Sandy Lake. She is a graduate of Grove City General Hospital and continued her studies in nursing education at the University of Pittsburgh and, along administrative lines, at the American Hospital Association Institute.

Her experience has included a period of public health nursing in Pennsylvania; as director of a nursing school at Concord, N. H.; chief nurse of the Brooklyn Aid

CAGE MEETING

Managers of the basketball teams represented in the Y. M. C. A. League are reminded of the meeting to be held Wednesday evening at the "Y" at 7:30. Bear Season Opening Is Disappointing

In spite of unsatisfactory weather conditions the bear season opening in the area according to all accounts was below the average for the first day. Game Protector George W. Norris received reports of fifteen having been killed in the county. The usual number of routine violations were checked, one including the killing of an illegal bear cub. One small bear on a tender of a car parked in Pennsylvania avenue near Hickory attracted attention last evening.

Game Supervisor for the district, Hayes T. Engliert, at Oil City, reported that most of the large field of hunters spent most of the time trying to find their way about in the rain and fog that prevailed throughout the big game territory.

The adverse weather conditions made for anything but good hunting, with no tracking snow present and visibility at zero. Game officials believe that the kill for the district would have been rather heavy under different weather conditions, but as it was, many of the big game hunters had trouble finding their way back to camp and their automobiles after a fruitless day in the woods.

Supervisor Engliert said that even the boys who are carrying compasses, got into trouble when they relied on their own sense of direction rather than the little needle on the compass.

Upon his return to Oil City, the supervisor remarked that it was one of the poorest days for bear hunting he had encountered and that the situation could be covered very well by merely saying that nothing out of the ordinary happened.

The only bright spot of the day was the fact that no accidents had been reported to the district game commission office here up until a late hour last night, and it appeared that the chance of a perfect safety record for the opener was excellent.

The bear hunters have three more days in which to try for a kill, with the season terminating on Thursday.

Unused Wing Of Hospital To Be Opened

The unused west wing at Warren General Hospital, closed for some time because of the shortage in nursing help, will be reopened for use on Friday of this week, it is learned today.

One nurse was secured through an appeal printed in these columns a few days ago and the board of directors is hopeful of securing additional help to completely staff the wing.

Through the reopening of this section, it is stated, it will be possible to return the child patients to this department, the first move to be made on Friday.

Completely equipped and only recently repainted and redecorated, this wing provides three small wards and several private rooms. Its addition will mean a great deal in easing crowded conditions at the hospital and will again segregate the children from adults, a condition which has been without remedy since it was necessary to close off this part of the building.

The suggestion has been made that there may be qualified nurses in the community who would be willing to work one or two days weekly, if not full time, and any such persons interested will be doing the institution and their community a favor if they will communicate with the hospital at once and lend a hand in this emergency.

Thinking Americans Today... ARE NOT TOO FREE WITH FREE SPEECH

Since our republic was founded, no privilege has been guarded more jealously than the right to talk things over—a right for which men had fought in vain for centuries. The more viewpoints discussed, the clearer our national vision and the stronger our national unity.

Today, public opinion in America asks us all to protect our privilege. It warns us against spreading rumors thoughtlessly or circulating information helpful to the enemy. It urges us to challenge the person with "inside information on the war" by asking him, "Where did you get your facts?" It reminds us that the enemy lays important plans by piecing together little scraps of offhand information. There is no such thing as unimportant gossip.

With a total of 423 members reported to date, the Y. M. C. A. Membership Campaign is scheduled to close tonight, with the workers endeavoring in the last twenty-four hours of the effort to corral the goal of 555. The third and final report meeting is scheduled for six o'clock this evening, when, it is hoped, the "mopping up" troops will come in with enough members to make the session a victory event.

Company No. 1, captained by A. H. Templeton, came up from behind last night and shoved Captain Flowers' company out of first place. Templeton's company now has 93 members for 4781 points, while Flowers' aggregation has 52 members for 4315 points. George Frantz's company is still in there making a good showing with 43 members for 4945 points. Capt. Mowell is still in the running, in defense of his last year's championship, having 42 members for 3920 points.

Rev. H. H. Barr gave the opening prayer of the meeting last night, and a group of ladies of the St. Paul's Lutheran church served the supper.

Selectees Hear Timely Discourses

Selectees who attended last night's Pre-Union meeting at the Y. M. C. A. were especially privileged in that Col. P. J. Stevenson, of Camp Hulen, Texas, was present and delivered an impressive and informative message backed by his own rich experience in the service.

Island Song by Owen Atkinson

Chapter 9
INSTINCTIVELY, Laura's hand went out and touched the sleeve of Jason's jacket, and at that slight contact a bond of sympathy was established between them. They were strangers no longer. Jason became a boy, talking to a woman who was his mother's friend. Moving along through the trees under the flickering light of the kuka-nut torches, they talked of New England and of Boston eighteen years ago. The cold winters and green springs, the sting of salt spray in the face, and the gray ocean, lashed by storms, tumbling against the rockbound coast.

From the palace appeared two women and Jason saw that one was Queen Liloa, the other the princess. He quickened his pace eagerly so that Mrs. Webb had difficulty in keeping up with him. The queen and the princess moved slowly along the path. Jason and Laura hurried to meet them. The girl gave Jason a startled, delighted look and then cast down her eyes demurely. The queen saw Jason and snorted. "Laura," she demanded coldly, "who is this?" She used her best English.

"Why, Your Majesty," said Laura graciously, "surely you remember Captain Blake? He was recently present at court."

"I remember him," the queen said darkly. "Who give him invite to concert?"

"You mustn't!" cried the princess in a shocked voice. "He is our guest."

"He not my guest!" snapped the queen.

"Just a moment, Your Majesty," cut in Laura Webb. "I requested that Captain Blake receive an invitation."

"I remind you that this is a royal concert, not a private affair," muttered the queen.

"If I have given offense—" began Laura tartly.

"Oh, never your mind," said the queen hastily. "It make little difference. Recent events has excite me. The captain can stay if he like." She turned to Liloa. "Come, us go to the front of palace. We not must be late for the king's speech." With a great rustling of silk, she moved off heavily, the princess walking quietly at her side.

LAURA WEBB put her hand on his arm and told him quietly that the queen was old and childish and fretful and that her outbursts meant nothing.

"But why should she take such violent dislike to me," Jason protested. "How could I have offended the old lady? Why, this is only the second time she's ever seen me!"

"The queen has heard," Laura guessed, "about your meeting the princess on the beach. She thinks you have offended the royal dignity. The Hawaiians are like that. Their temper is quick, but not long lasting. She will have forgotten the whole affair tomorrow."

When Jason and Laura Webb reached the front of the palace they found the guests assembled there. Laura Webb hurriedly took her place beside her husband. Jason saw Caleb on the outer edges of the crowd and joined him. The king was about to speak. The drummer rattled off a long ruffe, the audience became quiet. The king stood up, looking very splendid in his admiral's uniform. With the light of the torches glittering on the gold epaulettes and braiding.

His Majesty was not a fluent public speaker. He cleared his throat noisily.

"Gracious salutation," he began, sweeping the audience with a haughty glance. "We now arise to announce an event of grave importance. Princess Liloa is to be united in wedlock to the husband I have selected. David Hoapili. On the day of the ceremony, David will become a member of the royal family, with the title of Prince. Let all gathered here attend, listen, and respect our commands." He turned to the members of the band. "More music," he ordered.

The band struck up "God Save the King." The palace guards presented arms—rather awkwardly. Visiting foreign officers saluted and civilian gentlemen removed their hats. The king swelled out his chest and tried to look as royal as possible. It was all very impressive—and a little ridiculous.

Jason, once he got the meaning of the king's words felt as if he had been struck a sudden and staggering blow in the pit of the stomach. He wanted to cry out in protest, but could make no sound. Blindly he turned and forced his way through the crowd toward the gates. He heard Caleb call after him but did not answer. Past the scene he staggered and out into the dark streets of the town.

JASON swung away from the palace, turned toward the town. He paid no attention to the direction. His feet crunched in the coral of the road; he was oblivious to the warm, fragrant night about him. Somewhere in the neighborhood blossoms shed their perfume, a great golden shower tree rained down flowers on the road. The trade winds breathed through the trees with languorous softness. It was a beautiful romance, and Jason walked through it, unfeeling and unconscious of the beauty about him.

He was astonished at his own attitude toward the girl. He realized that he'd been thinking about her a great deal since their meeting at the beach, and that what had begun as a casual flirtation had now become serious. To his amazement, he discovered that he was in love with her, probably had been all along. This realization added to the shock of the recent announcement.

Chapter 10
JASON saw now that he had come back to the palace grounds. The torches had all been put out; the palace seemed to brood quietly. Brown-skinned sentries paced slowly along the walls. They paid no attention to Jason. He came to the end of the wall and turned to follow it around. The girl gave Jason the palace, square and solid and frowning in the moonlight. In one room a light burned, throwing flickering shadows on the curtains.

And then he heard a girl singing. It was the sad, haunting song of the harbor. And the voice? Why, it must be the Princess Liloa.

Jason stared up at the lighted room. A shadow fell across the curtain—the familiar slim shadow of the princess. He must see her, Jason decided. He must talk to her, hear from her own lips that she did not love this Prince David who was being forced to marry.

He looked about for the sentry. The man passed, going in the opposite direction. Jason inspected the wall carefully, seeking some way up. To a man trained in handling himself in the rigging of ships, the climb presented no particular difficulty. Heavy vines trailed over the wall. Jason tested their strength and found that they would hold his weight. Quietly, he swung himself up and over.

He was directly beneath the room where the light glowed—Liloa's room. The wall of the palace had been put together by unskilled hands. Jagged corners and cracks offered an easy foothold. Jason scaled the side of the building and heaved himself over the balcony and heaved himself over. He was in deep shadow here, the light from the room falling across the far end of the balcony.

Jason whistled softly. Silence.

He whistled again, more insistently this time. There was a rustling noise from inside the room. The curtain parted and the Princess Liloa appeared. Jason could see the curious, puzzled expression on her lovely young face.

"ILOA!" His voice trembled with eagerness.

The girl gasped with astonishment, drew back with terror. Then, stepping out on the balcony, she drew the curtains behind her. "Jason!" she cried softly. "If one of the sentries saw you—"

"There was no other way," he assured her. "I had to talk to you."

The girl smiled and moved near. Jason stared down at her half-parted lips. She slid away from him, passed through a shadow and came again into the light. He followed, groping blindly after her. Jason's voice choked as he spoke to her. "Tell me you love me."

"I love you, Jason," she answered softly. "But there is no way. Even Doctor Webb cannot save me now. The king has spoken."

The girl moved slightly so that a shaft of light from the room fell upon her, making the tawny satin of her skin glow with life. Her face, half turned toward him, was wistful, appealing. "I will go with you—to the end of the world," she said softly. "Even to that cold country of the north, of which you told me."

Jason suddenly found himself holding her tight, her warm body pressed close to his, her lips just above his own. As in a dream, he felt her arms go about his neck. For a long second they stood together, swaying slightly.

Then suddenly the girl pushed him away, backed into a corner, trembling, terrified. "What have you done?" she whispered. "Oh, Jason, what have you done to me?"

"I love you," Jason cried huskily, and reached for her again. But she pushed him away and gazed up into his face with round, fearful eyes. "You have had your arm about me. The tabu is broken."

"Tabu?" scoffed Jason. "Do you think a heathen custom could keep me from holding you? Let all the kings in the world mumble meaningless words over you. That wouldn't stop me. You're mine! I have loved you since that first day I saw you standing behind the King at court. You smiled at me then through your fan. I knew."

AS Jason talked, the girl crept closer. His arm went about her protectingly. "I love you, Jason," she said. "I have always loved you. When I was a little girl and Laura Webb took me on her knee and told me stories, it was of you I dreamed. I knew that you would come some day, tall and fair. I waited."

"Yes," said Jason, "and I too have dreamed of a princess. I dreamed that I would meet you like this, in the moonlight, in a land soft and fragrant with flowers."

The princess had never been kissed. She had never been touched by a man in her life-time. Yet she knew that she wanted this man to hold her in his arms, press his lips against hers. And when he held her close a strange emotion burned in her breast. An unfamiliar emotion.

She lifted her lips to his. There was a sudden movement behind the curtain. Jason heard a muffled scream of rage and alarm. Kilani came charging out onto the balcony.

THE CIGARET SHORTAGE

Here's the nub of the cigaret situation, as pointed out by Alexander Hamilton Institute:

"Much of the scarcity of tobacco is artificial, created by government acreage and crop controls originating in depression years. Now the problem is reversed, with crops unable to meet a 50 per cent. increase in demand."

Per capita consumption last year was 1,888 cigarets. Observers report it is much higher this year, due to the tempo of the war—and more GI and women smokers.

The New York financial service adds:

Why is cigaret production decreasing rather than increasing? The answer appears to be two-fold; a shortage of labor and an unsatisfactory price-cost relationship. Some of the largest cigaret factories are located in areas of critical manpower shortage, and are affected by their location just as are other industries not directly related to war production. The War Manpower Commission expects that the labor shortage may be somewhat mitigated by spring.

Prices and costs are another story. Even OPA admits that the profit margin guaranteed by the price act (1936-1939 average levels before taxes) is barely attainable in present-day tobacco processing.

Not only have labor costs risen through the granting of higher wages, but last July the tobacco growers succeeded in getting OPA's approval for boosts in the price of flue-cured tobacco—a cent a pound for untied leaf, 2½ cents for tied leaf. As a result, profits in the cigaret industry are nearing the point where manufacturers may have to ask for price relief under the law. The head of OPA's tobacco section has indicated that they may soon be justified in so doing.

A columnist of nationwide repute who gained considerable fame with his forecasts and interpretations of the news states that the shortage is blamed on a row between the bureaucrats and the tobacco manufacturers, who are holding out for an increase of one cent per pack. On the other hand he says "The government viewpoint is that manufacturers should cut their vast overhead in advertising rather than raise the prices."

Tobacco growers, in self-justification, point to increased labor costs of an estimated 100 per cent.

WILLFUL MEN

"The German has to be hit with everything we've got . . . I want more supplies than we are getting . . . To get peace we've got to fight like hell for it." Thus spoke General Eisenhower. And even as he was speaking, East Coast truckmen were saying that cannon rifles and bayonets—supplies that the General wants—were being held back from ports of embarkation.

Why the tieup? Because of a truckers' strike in Boston. And why were they striking? Because of a squabble within the union over an election of officers.

Thus a "little group of willful men" can delay victory and cost lives. Incidentally, they can also give responsible labor a black eye. And for that reason, if no other, it would seem appropriate that the AFL Teamsters' Union, to which the truckers belong, follow the example of the CIO Auto Workers' Union and at least threaten union discipline of the parties to such costly and, under the circumstances, reprehensible disputes.

STETTINIUS BOOM STARTS

President Roosevelt's nomination of Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., for secretary of state may have lifted him into the field of potential Democratic presidential candidates in 1948. With senate confirmation likely this week, the silver-haired undersecretary becomes officially No. 2 man in the executive branch of the government. In one sense, Stettinius is regarded as a compromise choice for the post Secretary of State Hull relinquished because of ill health, with Vice President Wallace and War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes in the second and third spots respectively.

The OPA is trying hard to hold top prices within reason, which will be one good reason for a Merry Christmas for more youngsters.

If as many people could get autos as autos get people many would be satisfied.

WASHINGTON — Your capital in wartime:

Although they refuse to give out the name of one principal involved, the War Department itself is authority for one of the most unusual promotions ever made in the field.

It happened when the 25th Infantry division was mopping up on Guadalcanal. The corps commander was Maj. Gen. Joseph Lawton "Joe Lightning" Collins, who has since distinguished himself as the man who opened the breach in the Normandy defense lines through which Gen. Patton's armored forces overran France. He also is the man who forced and accepted the surrender of Cherbourg.

Gen. Collins is a front line commander. On this occasion on Guadalcanal, a mortar crew chief in an outpost on an important ridge overlooking Japanese strongpoints was startled when somebody slid into his foxhole. He whirled to find himself face to face with Gen. "Lightning Joe." The general didn't waste any time.

"Lay your fire there, Captain," the general ordered, designating the target. "Yes sir," the mortarman replied and rattled off firing instructions, then added, "But I'm not a captain, sir."

The round of fire completely demolished the target the general had designated. He grunted and said, "All right, but now lay your fire right there, Lieutenant." The mortarman rattled off his instructions and then protested, "But I'm not a lieutenant, sir, I'm just a sergeant."

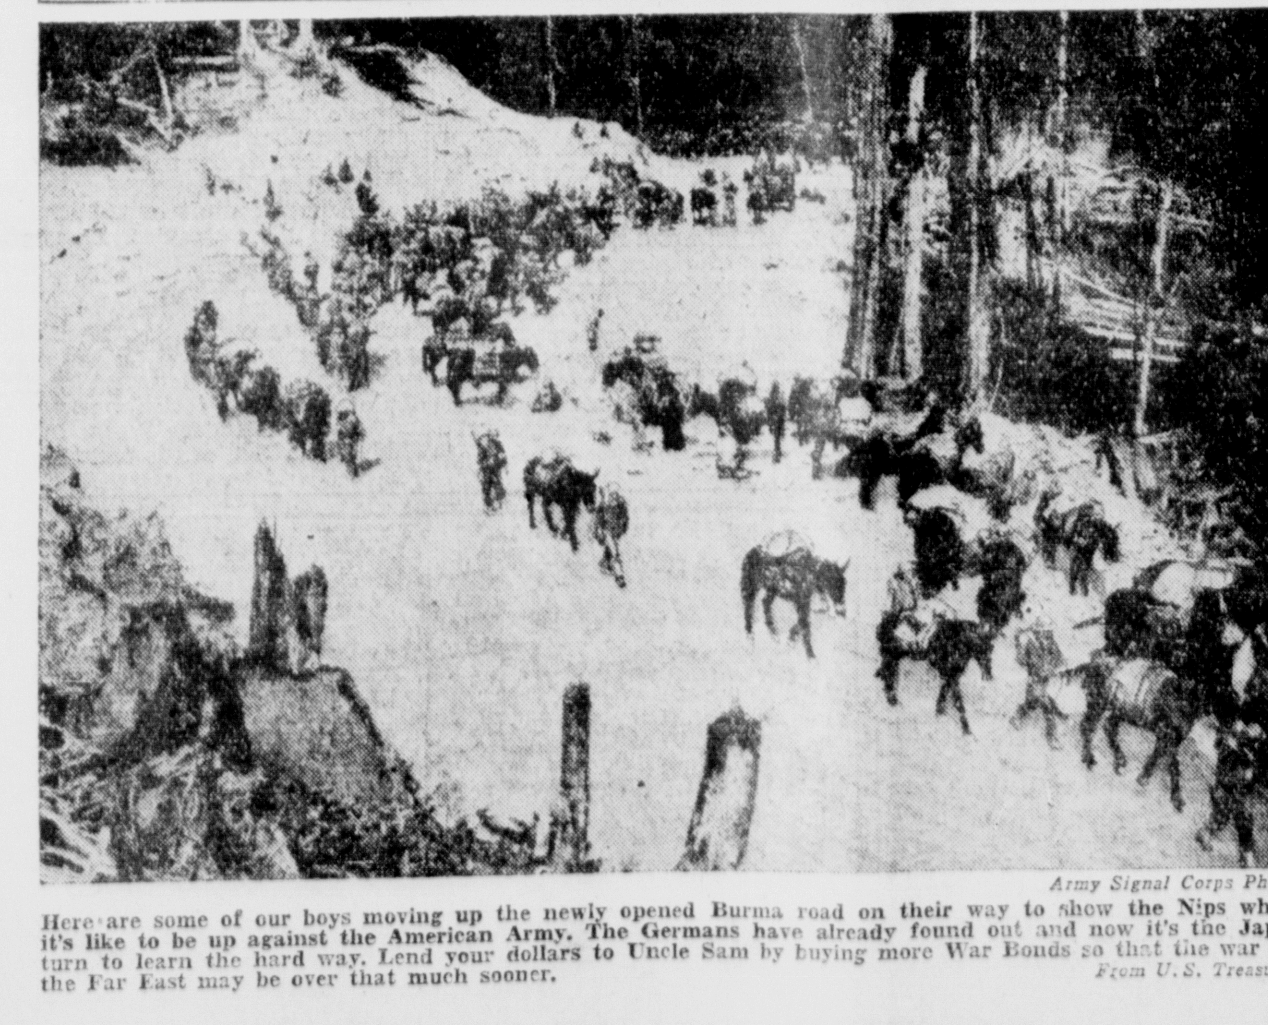

"Lightning Joe" watched the strong point blasted out of the ground. "Any one who can direct fire as accurately as that should be a captain," he said.

Up the Burma Road Go the Yanks

Here are some of our boys moving up the newly opened Burma road on their way to show the Nips what it's like to be up against the American Army. The Germans have already found out and now it's the Japs' turn to learn the hard way. Lend your dollars to Uncle Sam by buying more War Bonds so that the war in the Far East may be over that much sooner.

Registrants 30 to 38 Will Be Reviewed

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg, Pennsylvania Selective boards today started reviewing cases of all registrants 30 to 38 years of age in a move to stem the flow of workers from vital war industries.

Col. Richard K. Mellon, state draft director, ordered processing for induction of all "who have ceased employment in war industries or in activities that support the national health, safety or interests, or who refuse to furnish accurate information as to current employment."

Registrants in the 30-38 age group who actually are engaged in war production or supporting activities are not affected by the order Mellon declared.

He pointed out that registrants 18 to 26 may be deferred on the basis of occupations only in event such action is recommended to local boards by the state director on grounds the registrant's activities are necessary for successful prosecution of the war.

Those between the ages of 26 and 30, he added, are entitled to occupational deferment only if they are "necessary men" regularly engaged in war production or in a supporting activity.

Many Annual Flowers Do Well from Fall Planting

Every case in which nature produces annual flowers in a garden from self-sown seed, is a demonstration that annuals can be grown from seed sown in the fall.

The list of annuals which can self-seed may vary in different sections of the country, but it is probable that annual larkspur and cornflowers (centaurea cyanus) will be on the list almost anywhere.

May authorities advise that larkspurs be so grown wherever possible. Plants from fall sowing get started much earlier in the spring; and they flower almost as soon as indoor plants, besides growing much larger and more vigorous.

The list may safely include all annuals which usually self-sow in your neighborhood, and any other varieties which are hardy, and have small, hard seeds, with which you are willing to take a chance for the sake of earlier plants. Large, soft seeds, even of hardy varieties, may decay in the wet ground, but the hard seeds will lie safe if protected from being washed out of the soil by rains, or injury in some other way.

Nature is always lavish; and much of the seed she sows, no doubt, is lost. With purchased seed one will probably wish to be more careful.

A seed bed surrounded by a wooden curb is an excellent place to sow fall annuals. A cold frame will do as well; and many sow seeds in the open garden, where experience has shown drainage is good. If seeds are sown in rows, which can be marked, it is easy to check results and protect the seedlings when they appear.

Sow the seed thinly, mixing small seed with dry sand to help scatter it, and do not sow much deeper than you would in the spring. Many gardeners cover the row with a shallow layer of sand after sowing. In a seed bed, or cold frame, after the ground has frozen a light mulch of leaves may be placed over the

County Tank Driver Cited By Gen. Wood

Headquarters of the Fourth Armored Division in France sends word that Cpl. Harry M. Hotchkiss, 26, husband of Lloydine Hotchkiss, of Columbus, has been cited for meritorious achievement in actual combat and awarded the Bronze Star Medal by Maj. General John S. Wood, commanding that division. Cpl. Hotchkiss is a tank driver with an armored field artillery battalion.

The citation reads in part:

"On 24 September 1944, while the battalion was in position near La Neuveville, France, Hotchkiss was acting as driver of an M4 tank assigned with a forward observer. The Germans laid intense artillery fire on that town in preparation for a counter-attack, and Hotchkiss, by skillful maneuvering managed to get the tank out of range when the order to withdraw to higher ground came.

"This tank crew towed a disabled vehicle, which otherwise would have fallen a prize to the enemy, and when they tried to unfasten their tow cable they found it caught fast. An enemy Mark V tank took advantage of this predicament to open direct fire on them, but the gunner of the tank opened fire and set the German vehicle aflame. Artillery fire adjusted from the tank completed the job of destroying the hostile Mark V.

"Hotchkiss got out and succeeded in breaking the tow cable, and they proceeded to join the other tanks on higher ground. This enlisted man's skillful driving, his bravery in dismounting and freeing this vehicle from an entanglement which might have proved disastrous had they stayed there, and his efficient performance of his duties under enemy fire, all reflect great credit upon himself and the United States Army."

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Barrett, 338 East Fifth avenue, have had word that their son, Pvt. Charles Barrett, is stationed somewhere in Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bailey, Pennsylvania avenue, east, have received word that their son, Cpl. Donald Bailey, has been transferred from England into France; also that another son, LaVerne, has been transferred from Camp Stoneham, Calif., to Camp Howze, Tex.

GETS CAPTAINCY AND DECORATION

Mrs. J. W. Dunkle has received word that her husband, Jack W. Dunkle, has been promoted to captain; also that he has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroic achievement in action against the enemy on October 6th somewhere in France.

SHERMAN DECORATED

Friends of William G. Sherman, 23, of Jamestown, N. Y., a volunteer ambulance driver with the French First Army, will be interested to learn that he has been decorated with the croix de guerre for bravery in action in the Belfort Gap area. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Sherman, Jr., of 543 Lakeview avenue.

Mrs. Gussie Winsor, 118 North South street, has received word that Michael Cebra, stationed in England, has been promoted to corporal.

IN THE PHILIPPINES

Mrs. Mary Dynak of Sheffield, has received word from her son, Pete, that he has been promoted to corporal; also that he is now with MacArthur in the Philippines, his third move since going overseas. He first went to New Guinea, then to the Netherlands East Indies. He was inducted in September 1942, and has not been home since.

Navy Ends Decisive In Dec. 2 Game

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 28—(P)—Army must clip Navy's wings if it expects to stop Navy's five-year winning streak in the service class at Baltimore's Municipal Stadium Saturday, for Tar end play may be a decisive factor in the battle.

In fact, thwarting the defensive and offensive genius of what observers rate as one of the greatest collection of ends ever to grace a single football squad shapes up as perhaps the West Pointers' major job.

Ends Leon Bramlett, John Hansen, Ben Martin, Charley Guy, Bob Hill, Al Lalande and several others are major keys to Navy's touted defense and a potentially versatile threat on offense.

If they can't be turned by Army's speedy backs—and no enemy speedsters have done it with consistency—there is nothing left for Glenn Davis, John Minor, Bobby Dobbs, Doug Kenna, Tom Lombardo and company to do but cut back into such cement blocks as Don Whitmire, Ben Chase, Jack Martin, and Gail Gilliam in the center of the Tars' line.

Hockey Leaders Oppose Combining of East-West

By the Associated Press
The American Hockey League has turned down a proposal to abandon the current method of dividing the league into an East and West section with separate standings. League prexy Maurice Podoloff announced that after "quite a little discussion" a vote by mail revealed a bare (4-3) majority opposing the move.

His statement, however, that "this ends it for this season" indicates that the door is open for consideration of the plan next year. Under the present setup Hershey, Buffalo and Providence comprise the Eastern loop with Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Indianapolis and St. Louis in the west.

In action tonight, the Indianapolis Caps have a chance to tie the Flyers at St. Louis. The Flyers haven't won a game so far in November.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, Nov. 28—(P)—One reason why Elmer Layden, pro football's head man, favors a national physical training program based on athletics over a military training program is that athletics will help rehabilitate returning service men "in games played under rules." In wartime, he explains, they learn to discard all rules except the rule of self-preservation. He also points that by building up high school and college athletes so that every boy is a participant and then supplementing this with playground and industrial teams, it wouldn't cost the taxpayers so much. That's always worth thinking about, and the important part is to have our young men physically able to serve when they're needed.

Words of the Wise
Earl Ruby, Louisville Courier-Journal sports editor, nominates Tennessee's John Barnhill as the coach of the year. "Barnhill came from no team at all to the Rose Bowl in one year," says Ruby. "A year ago he was teaching calisthenics to ASTP students. Today he is teaching his Vols new tricks for those U. S. C. Trojans." . . . And Scoop Latimer of the Greenville, S. C., News suggests: "Miami may wonder if it picked a lemon for the Orange Bowl if Georgia Tech's defeat by Notre Dame was the acid test." . . . Probably won't care, Scoop, so long as there's a juicy gate.

Wrong Direction
Lieut. Joe Maniaci of the Bainbridge Navy Commodore tells this one about a golf game with Jimmy DeMaret, Bob Hope and Bing Crosby when he visited the west coast with the Chicago Bears. . . . On the first hole, Hope asked his caddy the distance, teed up his ball and proceeded to slice it a mile out of bounds. . . . On the second he again asked, then hooked beyond the boundary. . . . Each time Bob decided there wasn't any use playing out the hole after such a bad start. . . . On the third tee, Hope again asked his caddy how far it was to the cup. . . . "Mistah Hope," replied the youngster, "you don't want to know how long this hole is; you want to know how wide."

Cleaning the Cuff
Virginia's Hank Walker and Yale's Paul Walker, both ends, both navy trainees and both mentioned prominently in the All American ratings, got together for dinner recently and discovered that both were near the top of their class scholastically. . . . Paul's older brother, Blake, who also was quite a football player at Yale, is headed for the Fort Pierce, Fla., Navy amphibious base but won't arrive until after the football season. . . . Ralph Daughton, president of the Piedmont League, was elected to Congress this year. Now baseball men are wondering if he can be president and congressman at the same time. . . . Among all the college guys at the Iowa Pre-Flight school, Lt. Ben Becker, the boxing coach, says he has a F. F. M. Degree—for Fulton fish market.

Red Grange Heads U. S. Grid League and Peg Parsons, Erie Sports Writer, Is Secretary

BY JIMMY JORDAN

Chicago, Nov. 28—(P)—Harold (Red) Grange, who hasn't been out of touch with football since his hey-day as the "galloping ghost" of the University of Illinois gridiron, had another football job today, and with it he envisioned a possible "Gridiron World Series" for the postwar era.

Grange yesterday was elected president of the newly organized United States Football League. Today he was making plans for the day when champions of the various play-for-play leagues can get together in post-season games to determine the world champion.

With final organization of the United States League, there now are three circuits located in the midwest and east—the long-established National Football League, the All-American Conference, and the loop headed by Grange. The latter two expect to begin operation next year.

Eight cities—including Honolulu—were granted franchises in the United States League yesterday, and four more are expected to be added before the 1945 season, Grange said. They are: Chicago, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington, New York, Akron, O., and Boston.

Grange said the league had been incorporated under Illinois laws, and would have its headquarters here. Each franchise holder put up a $10,000 guarantee.

He listed the franchise holders as: Chicago, J. E. (Ned) Grimes, a consulting engineer, and others; Baltimore, A. H. Ehlers, President of the Intersate Baseball League; Philadelphia, J. J. Ahlin, businessman; Washington, Lt. Harry L. Harris, an insurance man now in the coast guard; New York, W. S. Palmer, a contractor; Honolulu, Ralph W. Olson, businessman, Dr. Samuel L. Yee, Chinese surgeon, and F. J. Brickner, a navy employee who once played football at St. Marys, Calif.; Akron, Charles Burns, representative of the Akron Rubber Bowl and 50 stockholders. Boston's franchise holders were not identified.

In addition to Grange, other officers elected were Ehlers, vice president; Howard Parsons, sports editor of the Erie (Pa.) Times, secretary, and Burns, treasurer.

The congregation of the First Methodist church is going ahead with plans to construct a new edifice. The building will be situated on the old Watson property at the corner of Market and Second, one of the finest locations in the town. Several large gifts have been made toward the construction.

The construction from the Kinzua road to the forestry outlook tower on the top of Coal Hill by the Federal Forestry department may add another line to Kinzua's list of industries. A 17-inch crop of soft coal has been discovered at the base of the rock on which the tower is situated.

At a meeting of the Warren County Good Roads Association, plans for the Allegheny National Highway and the Pittsfield-Titusville road were discussed.

The Yellow Cab Company, of this city, was fined for operating ten months without a license. The sentence was given by Justice of the Peace J. E. Wheeler and the convicted party admitted their error.

The Bethlehem Congregational church on Market street was filled almost to capacity for the farewell reception of Reverend and Mrs. Carl H. Peterson, who are leaving soon for California, where Reverend Peterson will take up his duties in the Mission Church at San Jose.

BEHIND THE LINES

New sets of pins were added to the bowling set-up at the Elks Club last evening, which might have been the cause for Lefty Allen's missing the "223 Club" honors. Lefty had just to knock down eight pins, but only seven went down, missing the 223 score by one pin. . . . The Soda and Mineral team in the Elks League has won more games than any other team in the Leading Knights division. This group has a total of 20 wins. . . . There was a nice bruin exhibited in front of Bimber's store last evening. Many of the bear collected yesterday were taken from around Kinzua. . . . The kids seem to have taken an active interest in the bowling sport. Over 100 high school youths bowl on the average of once a week. . . . Howard Flickinger, sharpshooting forward on last year's championship Sharon High cage squad, has left for army service. . . . A fine effort is being made by the Community PTA and the Youth Council to sponsor an ice carnival during the Christmas holidays. The carnival is to be held on the cement layout in back of Beaty School, with the court being flooded to make the skating possible. It has been suggested that a hockey league be formed and games be played on this court. . . . The 1944-5 basketball schedules have been printed and are now obtainable by the public. . . .

the five lettermen, he has five six-footers and a couple of short guys that will keep the big boys on their toes. Lanky Jack Eaton, brother of the '43-'44 team's Jim Eaton, is one of the most promising prospects on the court. Then come Ray Reed, Neil Simmons, Al Babcock, all in the height class. Tommy Juliano, Vin Gray, Al McNally, and quite a number of others, look at top form in the practice drills. With only three practice days remaining, the Massa crew has lots of work on their hands. Assisting Coach Massa is Harry Hutchings, veteran athletic director and football and basketball coach. "Hutch" is taking over the second team work.

Duke Footballers Favor West Point Over Navy

Durham, N. C., Nov. 28.—(P)—A majority of Penn and Notre Dame players like Navy to beat Army on Saturday, but Duke University players, who also lost to the Midies and the Cadets, are unanimous in predicting the West Pointers will win. Typical comment among the Blue Devils was Fred Haridson's "Army has better and faster backs and though they probably will have trouble with Navy's great line they'll finally get rolling."

consisted of Scripture, hymns and prayer by all departments of the school.

The Sugar Grove Girl Scouts collected 4,000 pounds of paper
Friday and Saturday. They were assisted by their leaders, the com-mitteewomen and members of the ganization. Girls working were

An informal gathering will be held in the community house Friday evening, in the form of a birthday party, with program and refreshments, and a commemorative service will be held Sunday morning.

The speaker at 11 a. m. Sunday will be Dr. A. E. McCormick, of Oil City, one of the congregation's earliest pastors and frequent visitor in the home of his wife's family, the Olsons and Hazelines.

The first pastor of the church,
Dr. J. Paul Shelley, is a patient in the Presbyterian Hospital at Cambridge Springs, and the committee is hoping that his state of health will permit of his coming for the Sunday service.

Pastor J. H. Cruickshank and his wife, going pastoral work for several months in army camps in North and South Carolina, are expected home in time for the celebration and will have many changes in their personage. A fine program of redecorating has been carried on there and everything is in readiness for their return.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 28.—(P)—In order to avert the threat of a rolley strike Mayor Cornelius D.
Scully today told police to stop a special check of traffic violations by street car operators.

The mayor said he called off the investigation because the motor-men, through their leaders in the APL-Analgamated Association of Street Car and Electrical Railway Employees, promised to observe traffic regulations.

Policemen began "tagging" motormen for speeding and other violations after a collision of street cars which killed six persons three weeks ago.
